LONG-TERM VOLUNTEERING

TEN operates a global network of volunteer centers around the world.

Our primary aim is to contribute to community development through our volunteering efforts, while also facilitating personal growth among our volunteers through additional after-hour lessons and activities. Moreover, we seek to forge connections among young volunteers from around the world, including Israel and the Jewish diaspora, working together to support developing populations worldwide.

TEN offers long-term volunteering programs who are interested in informal education. Our long-term volunteering program spans three months and is available yearly in January, May, and September in Uganda, Ghana, Cambodia, Ethiopia, South Africa, Mexico, and Argentina for a life-changing experience of volunteering, traveling, and learning.

Volunteering in the Community

TEN collaborates with change agents in the community, empowering them with educational concepts for lasting positive changes.

Additionally, by providing workshops and seminars, TEN empowers educators, which ensures that the benefits of our educational methodologies extend beyond the classroom, positively impacting the community as a whole.

Personal Development for Volunteers

Our volunteers participate in an intense educational curriculum. We discuss topics such as international development, social activism, and local culture. Additionally, our volunteer program offers volunteers independent travel every other week so that you can explore the country you're volunteering in!
